Mayor Mahan and honorable members of the Santa Clara City Council,

I support the Santa Clara City Council's recent decision to extend its negotiating agreement with the 49ers to provide time to develop a detailed term sheet for a new stadium.

A new stadium will be a positive addition to the city's entertainment district and will generate a significant boost to the Santa Clara economy. Independent economic impact studies confirm that a new stadium would generate hundreds of new jobs, millions of dollars in annual economic impact, hundreds of thousands of dollars in new annual tax revenue and millions for the Santa Clara Unified School District. Hosting a Super Bowl in Santa Clara would bring hundreds of millions in additional economic impact and will shine a spotlight on Santa Clara and the entire Silicon Valley.

The 49ers proposal calls for no money out of our pocket -- no new taxes for local residents, no negative impact on Santa Clara's general fund, and no increase in utility rates. This project is good for the city and good for the region.

Respectfully,
Christopher Fecteau

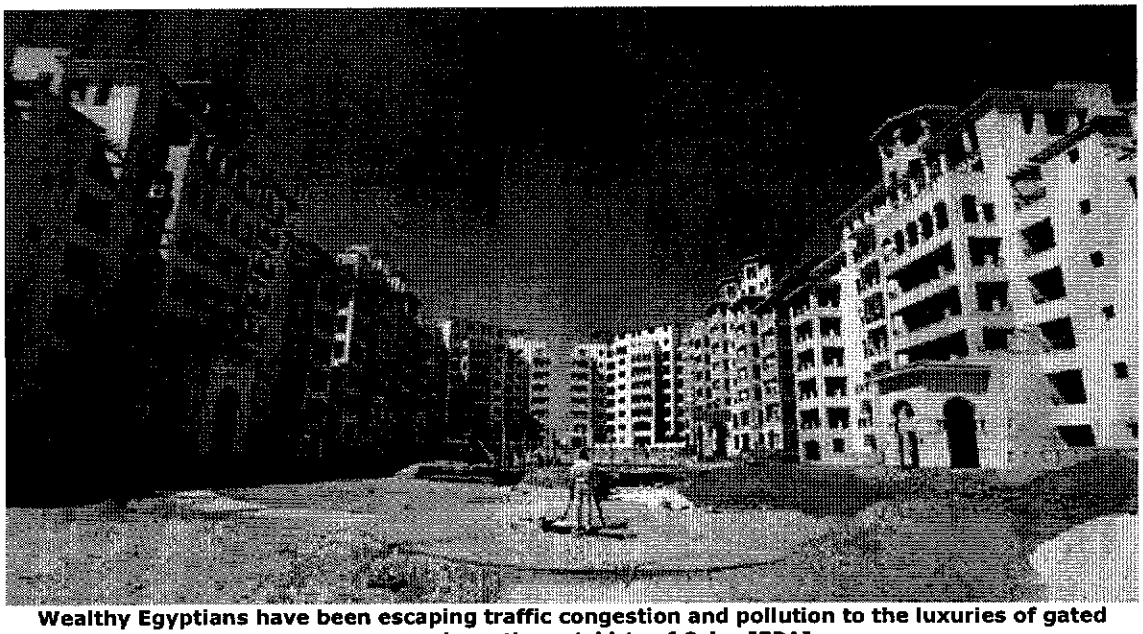
Cairo's 'suburbia' stays afloat

By Alex Dziadosz in Cairo



Wealthy Egyptians have been escaping traffic congestion and pollution to the luxuries of gated compounds on the outskirts of Cairo [EPA]

Over the past ten years a number of Egyptian developers have started to buc centuries-old trend, pushing Cairo's sprawl for the first time outward into a h of new satellite cities seated far from the banks of the Nile.

The abruptness of the shift is a testament to the spectacular rise of the Egyp real estate market, which has been sustained by a swelling population, rising wages and an infusion of foreign investment here over the past half decade, as European and American markets have ballooned and burst.

Now, as investors begin to fear that a worldwide recession could halt similar property booms across the region, the coming months will test whether Egyp real estate - long touted as a relatively stable, speculation-free market - can withstand the financial turmoil.

Egypt is a vast country, and much of its economy still lays beyond the reach of the government, in the immense informal sector.

Egypt hopes for US market revival

The roots of Egypt' market crash

Small or individual builders account for about three times as much construction as large ones, says Tarek Shahin, a real estate and construction analyst at the Cairo-based investment bank Beltone Financial. But the recent popularity of suburban communities suggests this balance is likely to shift in the coming years.

In 2004, Ahmed Nazif, the prime minister, embarked on a series of liberal reforms, selling off state holdings, simplifying taxes and pressing for "public private partnerships" in fields as varied as education, transportation and wat management. In many ways, the privatisation of housing has been an upsho this push.

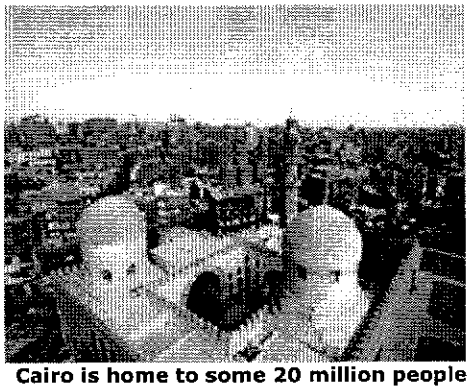
"For the first time we're seeing more weight given to what's known as 'new cities,' or gated communities," said Shahin. And Cairenes - at least those wh can afford it - are flocking to them.

As well as padding the coffers of big developers like Talaat Moustafa, Palm Hi and the Sixth of October Development and Investment Company (SODIC), th boom has given private companies a decisive role in determining the size of home and location many Egyptians live in, a stark contrast to the state's traditionally central hand in urban planning.

"Suddenly there's the option of living in a villa, having an entire garden and a swimming pool, away from the pollution," Shahin said. "Suddenly you're willi to take out some of your savings or even borrow money to pursue that new Egyptian dream."

Privatisation and growth

When the Free Officers Movement, headed by Gamal Abdel Nasser and Muhammad Naguib, swept into power in 1952, they were buoyed by a wave of populist socialism.



Cairo is home to some 20 million people for increasingly limited space [GALLO/G

The excesses of the monarchy they supplanted - under which about six per cent of landowners held two-thirds of Egypt's real estate - rendered Nasser's rhetoric all the more poignant.

Over the following years, Nasser's government expropriated broad swathes o property and redistributed it to poorer citizens, often enacting rent ceilings a other market controls.

Despite some reforms under Egypt's third president, Anwar Sadat, real estat remained mostly a state-run affair until the late 1990s.

"There was a period of, we'll call it decay," said Ahmed Badrawi, the director business development at Sodic, one of Egypt's largest developers.

"There was no private sector investment into real estate. You only had the ki of Soviet, socialist-style tenement high-rise blocks springing up over the city try to cater for the demand."

Overcrowding is of constant concern in a country where most of the nation's million are crammed into the Nile valley and delta. As the population balloon from about 26 million in 1960 to 82 million in 2008, the state could not keep

Today, nearly 70 per cent of Cairenes live in shantytowns and around nine ou ten residences are unregistered. The sprawl, concentrated along the Nile, has eaten into precious and increasingly scarce farmland.

Amid this disorder, the government was eager to promote fresh urban centre and push Cairo's growth east and west, said Patrick Gaffney, a real estate an at EFG-Hermes.

During the late 1990s, the government sold land cheaply, allowing developer build without too much risk.

Developments on hold

But when 58 foreign tourists were killed by outlawed groups at Luxor's Hatshepsut temple in 1997, the Egyptian economy crumbled. Most sectors took years to recover fully, placing many developments on hold.

It was not until 2004, with a series of liberal reforms and the opening of new roads, that non-residential developments like the Smart Village, a Sodic-built business park that hosts over 100 companies, began to sprout in the satellite cities, Badrawi said.

The reforms also gave Egyptian developers access to global capital markets and lured in a host of Gulf-based firms, flush from boo at home and keen to profit from pent-up Egyptian demand.

Fact file

The developments offeri escape from Greater Cai still too expensive for th estimated 40 per cent of Egyptians living on unde day. Some Sodic homes for as much as LE 20 mil ($3.6 million).

At Orascom Hotel and Development (OHD), a l developer known for bui the Red Sea town of El G essentially from scratch, average villas sell for $550,000.

The results have been dramatic. Gulf developers Emaar, Al-Futtaim and Dam Properties all boast multi-billion-dollar projects in and around Cairo, includinc Uptown Cairo (four million square metres, $2.35 billion) and Cairo Festival Ci (three million square metres, $3.7 billion).

In April, the "Next Move" conference, a huge real estate trade show, packed Cairo's International Conference Centre and featured, among other extravagances, a troupe of acrobats.

The satellite towns are mushrooming and estimated to house about 1 million people. According to Egypt's New Urban Communities Authority, the two will eventually swell to a combined 5.75 million residents.

Even Cairo's famed American University has moved out, reopening in New Ca earlier this year after shutting down its historic downtown campus.

Trouble on the way?

But confidence in the real estate sector has waned somewhat since the US financial crisis threatened markets around the world.

Construction is ongoing in New Cairo, 3 from the capital [EPA]

Arab sovereign funds, alongside many others, have lost a lot in the past week as investors have flocked out of emerging exchanges.

Housing markets in Syria, Jordan and Lebanon, long-buoyed by petro-dollars and haunted by the threat of speculation, suddenly appear less rosy.

Egypt, where some house prices have nearly doubled since last year, is no exception. When the Egyptian stock exchange plunged 27 per cent over two earlier this week, housing firms were among the hardest hit.

To allay market fears, analysts and industry heads have pointed out that Egyptian companies form the backbone of the sector, despite the well-publici presence of a number of Gulf-funded projects.

Many add that Egypt's fledgling mortgage sector is ripening and that demand general is still robust, if not as strong as last year, when some developments out within three days.

"Last year - that was a paradigm shift," Shahin said. "This year, it's regular s It's a more natural market where it takes maybe a month to sell an entire ph But in terms of prices, everyone's making money."

Relative shelter

Egypt's home-grown demand, heavily cash-based economy and common use of 'off-plan' contracts, where buyers pay for a house as it is built, have dampened the risk of speculation here and sheltered the market from global credit troubles, according to many analysts.

The more pressing concern, they say, is whether Egyptians can afford what is built.

"People are worried that it's a bubble," said Gaffney of EFG-Hermes. "I think the bigger problem is that a lot of companies came in and are focusing on the high-end real estate sector."

Fact file

As upper-tier demand fil firms will have to move middle-range housing, n analysts say. Some are already trying: Orascom Budget Housing, a firm by the same company as is building 50,000 lower units across three sites of Egypt's National Hous Project.

But Amr Sheta, the comp vice chairman, says all t will barely dent the cour housing gap, which OHD estimates to be 1.5 milli units.

Egypt's inflation rates - a record-snapping 23.6 per cent in August - have als rattled some investors, despite a common theory that inflation could shift investment to assets like housing that "store value".

And while many developers still cater to an upper tier that hovers above mos inflation worries, a cut into middle class budgets at a time when higher-end demand is waning could drag down firms' fortunes.

Preparing for rough times

Still, most companies appear to be prepared for rough times: The bust of the 1990s added an element of conservatism to many business models.

OHD, for instance, only sells off-plan. Such sales plans have ensured that ma companies can weather temporary drops in demand, said Shahin.

"Even if tomorrow one of the developers said, well we didn't have any new sa this month - and I don't see this is going to be the case - even if that happen everyone will still be busy for a number of years," he said.

None of this might matter, of course, if another tourist scare - bandits kidnap 19 tourists in Upper Egypt last month - or political upheaval sends the countr and its economy down an uncertain path.

Another persistent concern is that the exodus of wealth to satellite cities will downtown Cairo, an area affectionately referred to in local dialect as "Wust E Balad," or "Centre of the Country".

But for those fuelling the boom, this fear misses the point. The pined-for era when Cairo was known as "Paris on the Nile," is already gone, buried beneath decades of neglect and mismanagement.

"There's no sense of zoning downtown," Badrawi said. Offices mingle aimless with stores and houses. The streets are clogged and polluted.

"We're all Egyptians," he said.

"We all talk to our parents' generation about how Cairo used to be the most beautiful city in the world - perfectly master-planned, uncongested. Our drea to restore some of that. We're starting with a blank piece of paper in the suburbs."

Of course, no thought has been given to global warming, which could sink it

Mayor Mahan and honorable members of the Santa Clara City Council,

I support the Santa Clara City Council's recent decision to extend its negotiating agreement with the 49ers to provide time to develop a detailed term sheet for a new stadium.

A new stadium will be a positive addition to the city's entertainment district and will generate a significant boost to the Santa Clara economy. Independent economic impact studies confirm that a new stadium would generate hundreds of new jobs, millions of dollars in annual economic impact, hundreds of thousands of dollars in new annual tax revenue and millions for the Santa Clara Unified School District. Hosting a Super Bowl in Santa Clara would bring hundreds of millions in additional economic impact and will shine a spotlight on Santa Clara and the entire Silicon Valley.

The 49ers proposal calls for no money out of our pocket -- no new taxes for local residents, no negative impact on Santa Clara's general fund, and no increase in utility rates. This project is good for the city and good for the region.

Respectfully,

Mayor Mahan and honorable members of the Santa Clara City Council,

I support the Santa Clara City Council's recent decision to extend its negotiating agreement with the 49ers to provide time to develop a detailed term sheet for a new stadium.

A new stadium will be a positive addition to the city's entertainment district and will generate a significant boost to the Santa Clara economy. Independent economic impact studies confirm that a new stadium would generate hundreds of new jobs, millions of dollars in annual economic impact, hundreds of thousands of dollars in new annual tax revenue and millions for the Santa Clara Unified School District. Hosting a Super Bowl in Santa Clara would bring hundreds of millions in additional economic impact and will shine a spotlight on Santa Clara and the entire Silicon Valley.

The 49ers proposal calls for no money out of our pocket -- no new taxes for local residents, no negative impact on Santa Clara's general fund, and no increase in utility rates. This project is good for the city and good for the region.

Respectfully,
Alejandro Lacayo

Comments: I am concerned with the impact on traffic if the 49ers move to Santa Clara. Being very familiar with the area and the daily traffic routine, evening traffic would be greatly increased making a bad commute route more intolerable. Specifically, Tasman Avenue and 237. Imagine adding 30,000+ vehicles to the current 40,000+ vehicles already travelling in this area. Imagine the congestion Valley employees would suffer trying to get home at night.
Before you make any decision, I challenge each of you to travel on the 237 from the 101 to the 880 at 5pm, 6pm, 7p and 8pm on any Monday, Thursday and Friday. Especially Friday. Successfully completed, your challenge will reveal that nothing short of doubling the freeways and major roadways and tripling public transporation would adequately handle the traffic on event days. Imagine how upset Silicon Valley employees will be when their commute is doubled causing them to miss important family events, important personal appointments, public transportation connections and the worst offender of all.....a significant increase in fuel consumption! And what is worse than sitting in traffic? High gasoline prices.
Valley employees will seek employment elsewhere. Valley employers will find it increasingly difficult to find quality employees. Without adequate employees to fill necessary positions, Silicon Valley businesses would suffer thereby causing some to fold and Santa Clara County to lose revenue.
Please accept my challenge and I'm sure you will agree that the 49ers move to Santa Clara would have a horrific impact on Silicon Valley and its' employees and employers.
Thank you.

We have lived in Santa Clara for over 12 years now. Despite being in the heart of Silicon Valley, Santa Clara has been a such a wonderful city.

The stadium would bring along additional pollution, crime, traffic gridlock, and other corruption and impose unwelcome strain on our police, fire and medical infrastructure.

The stadium would adversely affect the Quality of Life in our beautiful Mission City.

Today, Sept 2nd, we learned from the internet that meetings were being held TODAY to discuss the 49ers stadium. For such an important decision, we are surprised that as city residents we were not given advance notification of these meetings. We cannot attend with such late notice, but we would like to state our total opposition to the stadium, regardless of the proposed public access facilities and other perks intended to sell the stadium to the community. I do not believe that community monies should be spent in support of professional athletics, and my utility reserve dollars should not create traffic jams in my community. I have not been convinced that the tax revenue projections will result in a net gain to Santa Clara. Please vote 'no' against the 49ers stadium construction.

I have no problem with the 49ers building a stadium. I just don't want it done with taxpayer money. If the 49ers pay for it, they will not be so apt to leave as professional sports team are wont to do if things don't work out the way they expect. Also, I feel most estimates are low and rarely come in at what was stated. I believe that revenue should only be shared with those who pay..2) We, the public, are allowed 2 minutes to speak, whereas the council for a simple yes or no on the 49er proposal was ridiculous. Jamie McLeod took 2 1/2 minutes and I zoned out when Will Kennedy was at 9. It is a simple yes or no; it's not a thesis.. finally, the mayor says that if a vote goes against her, then it's merely advisory. Very undemocratic, but the mayor is in good company; Carly Fiorina did the same thing at HP before she was fired. Alex Smith is getting 26 million, let him pony up my share.. Thank you . A new stadium will be a positive addition to the city's entertainment district and will generate a significant boost to the Santa Clara economy. Independent economic impact studies confirm that a new stadium would generate hundreds of new jobs, millions of dollars in annual economic impact, hundreds of thousands of dollars in new annual tax revenue and millions for the Santa Clara Unified School District. Hosting a Super Bowl in Santa Clara would bring hundreds of millions in additional economic impact and will shine a spotlight on Santa Clara and the entire Silicon Valley.

The 49ers proposal calls for no money out of our pocket -- no new taxes for local residents, no negative impact on Santa Clara's general fund, and no increase in utility rates. This project is good for the city and good for the region.

Respectfully,
gus selva

Mayor Mahan and honorable members of the Santa Clara City Council,

I support the Santa Clara City Council's recent decision to extend its negotiating agreement with the 49ers to provide time to develop a detailed term sheet for a new stadium.

A new stadium will be a positive addition to the city's entertainment district and will generate a significant boost to the Santa Clara economy. Independent economic impact studies confirm that a new stadium would generate hundreds of new jobs, millions of dollars in annual economic impact, hundreds of thousands of dollars in new annual tax revenue and millions for the Santa Clara Unified School District. Hosting a Super Bowl in Santa Clara would bring hundreds of millions in additional economic impact and will shine a spotlight on Santa Clara and the entire Silicon Valley.

The 49ers proposal calls for no money out of our pocket -- no new taxes for local residents, no negative impact on Santa Clara's general fund, and no increase in utility rates. This project is good for the city and good for the region.

Respectfully,
Menton Peter Harding

Santa Clara

Dear Mrs. Sparacino:

It's my wish to express my opinion to you and to the Council that, in my thinking, it's not wise to pursue bringing to Santa Cl;ara the SF 49ers as the proposals now stand. I've read the pros and cons as presented in the newspapers. I agree with Councilwoman Jamie McLeod's statements opposing the continuing exploration for bringing to SC this football team. There are too many "ifs" and one of the biggest "ifs" is the financial arrangements which appear to benefit the 49ers more than our City. We don't know how long this downturn of the economy will continue - how will this affect attendance - buying tickets for the games?

Further, it was a big mistake to not have on the November "08 ballot the question to the voters about the SF 49ers coming or not coming to Santa Clara. To have an election for this purpose in '09 is the expenditure of unnecessary money.

You owe us a thorough report on the income generated at other cities who've contemplated bringing in big ball clubs.

Respectfully yours,

(Mrs.) Dorothea Keener

Independent economic impact studies confirm that a new stadium would generate hundreds of new jobs, millions of dollars in annual economic impact, hundreds of thousands of dollars in new annual tax revenue and millions for Santa Clara Unified School District. Hosting a Super Bowl in Santa Clara would bring hundreds of millions in additional economic impact and will shine a spotlight on Santa Clara and the entire Silicon Valley.

The 49ers proposal calls for no money out of our pocket -- no new taxes for local residents, no negative impact on Santa Clara's general fund, and no increase in utility rates. This project is good for the city and good for the region.

Mayor Mahan and honorable members of the Santa Clara City Council,

On behalf of the Santa Clara community and the 49ers faithful, thank you for voting to accept the stadium feasibility study and move forward with negotiations with the team.

A new stadium will be a positive addition to the city's entertainment district and will generate a significant boost to the Santa Clara economy. Independent economic impact studies confirm that a new stadium would generate hundreds of new jobs, millions of dollars in annual economic impact, hundreds of thousands of dollars in new annual tax revenue and millions for Santa Clara Unified School District. Hosting a Super Bowl in Santa Clara would bring hundreds of millions in additional economic impact and will shine a spotlight on Santa Clara and the entire Silicon Valley.

The 49ers proposal calls for no money out of our pocket -- no new taxes for local residents, no negative impact on Santa Clara's general fund, and no increase in utility rates. This project is good for the city and good for the region.

Respectfully,
Janice Awe

Mayor Patricia Mahan
1500 Warburton Ave
Santa Clara, 95050

Dear Mayor Mahan:

I am concerned about the City of Santa Clara spending money on the 49rs ballpark, I want you to know that I have lived in Santa Clara for more than 20 years and I like football as much as the next guy, but I do not want the city to spend any money on it. I think it is a bad investment of public funds. I can not find any city that gets a good return on its investment in football stadiums. Do any of them make any money for the city? I do not know of any.

Please do not spend my tax dollars on a stadium.

Sincerely

Eric Aker

Comments: I recently heard that you are postponing the vote on the stadium for this November. I don't know the particulars, but it appears you'd prefer that the vote occur at a time when there would be less voter turnout. You must not think it would pass if many people voted this November. Sounds like a slight-of-hand deal to me. So are you representative of ALL the people of Santa Clara, or just special interests? I say hold it now. I'm opposed because of the immense traffic it would cause and the resultant air pollution. Don't we have enough?

Subject: Thank You

Mayor Mahan and honorable members of the Santa Clara City Council,

On behalf of the Santa Clara community and the 49ers faithful, thank you for voting to accept the stadium feasibility study and move forward with negotiations with the team.

A new stadium will be a positive addition to the city's entertainment district and will generate a significant boost to the Santa Clara economy. Independent economic impact studies confirm that a new stadium would generate hundreds of new jobs, millions of dollars in annual economic impact, hundreds of thousands of dollars in new annual tax revenue and millions for Santa Clara Unified School District. Hosting a Super Bowl in Santa Clara would bring hundreds of millions in additional economic impact and will shine a spotlight on Santa Clara and the entire Silicon Valley.

The 49ers proposal calls for no money out of our pocket -- no new taxes for local residents, no negative impact on Santa Clara's general fund, and no increase in utility rates. This project is good for the city and good for the region.

Respectfully,
eric lozano

Comments: I recently heard that you are postponing the vote on the stadium for this November. I don't know the particulars, but it appears you'd prefer that the vote occur at a time when there would be less voter turnout. You must not think it would pass if many people voted this November. Sounds like a slight-of-hand deal to me. So are you representative of ALL the people of Santa Clara, or just special interests? I say hold it now. I'm opposed because of the immense traffic it would cause and the resultant air pollution. Don't we have enough?
